COLDEST SUMMER OF ALL So the Present Season Will Be Recorded By Weather Bureau

New York, August 31.—With the last day of the month the summer of 1903 in New York passes into history as the coldest recorded by the weather bureau.

June reached the record of 1881. July was just a little bit of normal, but not enough to keep the fellow months of the summer from taking the average temperature a fraction below the figure reached in 1897.

The average temperature during June and August, figuring the last day of the present month at the normal, was 69 degrees. In 1897 the average temperature was recorded at three quarters of a degree higher.

The average temperature during August has been 69.5 degrees, nearly two degrees lower than the lowest mark the month ever reached. In 1887 and eight times previous to that year, the average temperature for August was recorded as 71 degrees.

Mariners of the old fashioned school have looked askance at the peculiar conduct of the elements during the last 20 days before but the inhabitants of tenements have enjoyed the unseasonable coolness which brought welcome to numerous summer hotel keepers.

BRITISH OPEN THEIR EYES Ireland Enters into Wider and Better Civilization

New York, August 31.—Ireland has crossed the turning line into a newer and better civilization, says ex-Lord Mayor Valentine Dillon of Dublin, who has just arrived on his way to Pittsburgh. "Only those who have lived in that land all their days, as I have done, can fully appreciate the condition of the province."

While not optimistic of Ireland's future Mr. Dillon declares that the British government has eventually opened its eyes.

"And now that its eyes are opened," he continued, "we actually feel better. Personally, I've never been of an aggressive nature, but had the turning point not soon been reached Ireland would have been forced to a condition that would have been disastrous."

The new land, and the anticipated such a wide and the next 20 years will see a hundred of its people by which the nation has been impoverished."

RAILROAD HOTEL CLOSES Building May Be Turned Over to Government for Hospital

Denver, August 31.—A special to the Republican from Albuquerque, N. M., says: Surgeon General O'Reilly of the United States Army and W. B. Jansen, assistant to President Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, returned today from a tour of inspection to the army sanitarium at Fort Bayard.

Mr. Jansen stated that the big Monte Zuma hotel at Las Vegas Hot Springs owned by the railroad company had been closed for lack of patronage, and may be turned over to the United States government for sanitarium purposes. It is said that the Surgeon-General favors the plan.
